The Manifesto for Planetary Solidarity

Intro: Time for reflection, time for change

1. The courage of insight, from which knowledge grows: the poly-crisis
2. The vision that grows from realisation: Homeland Earth
3. Action guided by insights and visions: the Great Transformation

Outlook: Let us not let the future be taken away from us!

Homeland Earth Main messages

“Homeland Earth” – not only an existing fact, but also a necessary goal: changing the existing unjust world order to overcome the great challenges of humanity and create a good, sustainable life for all

The deeper causes of the current poly-crisis:

- A crisis of human hubris
- A crisis of our “imperial mode of living”

Homeland Earth The Vision

- Realising the potential we have been given to repair the damage we have done and, at the same time, of opening up new horizons for human life
- A hopeful political programme and a programme for life for each and every individual:
 - The globalisation of solidarity based on global responsibility and manifested in global citizenship
 - The extension of solidarity to non-human life, without which human life would also be unthinkable; a solidarity that expresses itself as planetary citizenship

Homeland Earth A Call for Courage

- to think beyond the barriers of the previous way of thinking
- to leave the paths of the mainstream and accept rejection or non-observance
- to consider ideas that question one's own habits in life
- to venture out of one's comfort zone
- to face crises
- to be different and to want to become different

Conclusion

“Becoming aware of the earthly community of destiny must become the key event of our century.
We are in solidarity on this planet and with this planet.
We are anthropo-bio-physical living beings, children of this planet. This is our Homeland Earth.”
